The event was marked by dynamic discussions, strategic partnerships, and insightful sessions, all aimed at steering the F&B industry towards a prosperous future. The outcomes of these interactions will empower businesses, investors, and policymakers to make informed decisions, foster economic growth, and enhance the sector's competitiveness at the events in August this year.

Ratheesh Nair, Regional Director - Western Region for the Indian Chamber of Commerce, expressed gratitude for the association with Anuga Select India and Anuga FoodTec India. He also mentioned that the ICC plans to involve key government bodies and personnel in the event. Nair emphasized the importance of such collaborations in driving industry growth and innovation.

Dr. Hitesh Bhatt, the Director of Marketing & Communications at RAI (Retailers Association of India), is deeply involved in the retail industry nationwide. He highlighted that retailers from across India will gather at the show, and RAI will also contribute to seminars focused on the retail sector.

Dr. Ritesh Mathur, from AFSTI, emphasizes the importance of adhering to guidelines for exports, particularly within the spices segment, given the recent developments in this area. He also highlighted the need for continuous innovation and quality control to maintain a competitive edge in the global market. Additionally, he stressed the importance of collaboration between industry stakeholders to address challenges and seize opportunities in the export sector.

Chinmayee Deulgaonkar, President of AFSTI, highlights the upcoming technical seminar on August 28, 2024, which will cover topics such as 'Strategies to Mitigate Export Rejections in the F&B Industry.' Additionally, a session focused on women entrepreneurs and regulators is being planned. AFSTI also aims to feature last-year students presenting business ideas in a competition, potentially in collaboration with RAI.

Chef Kashivishwanath, representing Indian Federation of Culinary Associations (IFCA), envisions a dynamic panel discussion featuring renowned chefs from various regions across the country. He announced that Mr Manjeet Gill, Vice President - IFCA will be present at the show and sessions. We're considering exciting concepts like 'Cooking with Mumbai Chefs' or hosting a Biryani Challenge. Collaboration with catering colleges to sponsor equipment for cooking sessions is being explored. Additionally, we're planning 'Jugalbandi sessions' featuring international chefs alongside local chefs.

Dinesh Kalyani, representing FSDA, stressed on the importance of the role of Anuga Select India and Anuga FoodTec India for the Indian food and beverage industry. He further added that FSDA will ensure that all the major food distributor members of its association will be at the event and make the best use of the opportunity.
